An Afternoon with Author

Majel Redick

This collection of short stories revolves around the lives of small town folk meeting life events head on with unpredictable results.

About the Author

Majel was born in Cushing, Oklahoma and grew up in Ripley where she graduated high school. She attended Oklahoma State University and worked on campus for ten years. She has a B.A. in Human Resource Management and spent over 40 years in business as a trainer, coordinator, manager, and assistant to the president and CEO of a major business. She suffered a brain tumor in 2008 and underwent successful brain surgery that left her legally blind and hearing impaired. She and her husband Roger are at home in Northeast Texas.

I delight in finding humor in everyday life and creating small town characters who seem like my neighbors.

People have asked me if I put myself in any of the stories. No, I haven't, yet one lady has an awful lot of my idiosyncrasies. In 2011 I received a North Texas Professional Writers short story award for "Squirt's Kite." That story is included in FROM THE PORCH.

I'm currently at work on MY first full-length novel which will be released in Fall of 2013. In my spare time I work on poetry. I celebrate life and think every day is a singular gift from God.
